- Sound Recording - This was my first time using multiple audio recording devices. I thought it would be strange to have 2 different source of audio until we started hearing the difference in the quality between the camera microphone and a voice recorder. We had used a Sony recorder from the photo studios, Carstins recorder, and also used a Iphone. All three were very different and a really good try out. The qualities varied a lot but from this i have learn't a lot more about how sound works in a movie and the importance of a external microphone.

- Green Screening - After the first meeting i had with Cartin and Paul, I was told to be careful of shadows as they can affect a lot on post production. I also learn't how to manipulate light to avoid shadows on the screen, so for next time I will be able to adjust the angle of the lighting and not to be too close to the green screen. Overall I enjoyed this experience and would definitely be doing this in the future.

- Shooting

Camera man - Before this project, I had no idea how to use a camera properly. Nik had taught me how to focus on a subject, how different camera angles and mean different things in a scene, how colour affects your video.
